Annex 1: Detailed Terms of Reference

1. Purpose of the APW

The purpose of this APW is to provide technical support to the Government in developing the national guidelines on physical activity and sedentary behaviour in Bangladesh.

2. Background

Noncommunicable diseases (NCDs) are one of the most urgent and complex public health challenges in Bangladesh. Insufficient Physical Activity (PA) and sedentary behaviour is one of the leading risk factor for NCD related premature mortality and has major implications for the rising prevalence of NCDs. Though regular physical activity promotes both mental and physical health in people of all ages. Yet, many adolescents and adults do not meet WHO's recommended levels of physical activity. This affects not only individuals over their life course, but also places a financial burden on health services and society as a whole.

The WHO Global Action Plan on Physical Activity 2018–2030: more active people for a healthier world (GAPPA) was launched in 2018 to support countries to achieve a 15% relative reduction in prevalence of insufficient physical activity (PA) by 2030. GAPPA has raised awareness of the need for a whole-of-society response and a systems-based approach to achieve a paradigm shift in supporting all people to be physically active across the life course. Updating the WHO global PA guidelines was a key proposed action of this plan and requested by WHO Member States in the 2018 World Health Assembly.

Accordingly, In 2019, WHO updated global guidelines on PA, sedentary behaviour and sleep for children, adolescents, adults and older adults. The new WHO guidelines on PA and sedentary behaviour also support PA promotion in priority areas such as primary healthcare, education at all levels, workplaces, community structures.

Guidelines are an important part of PA policy development and flagship resource for health professionals and policymakers that provides recommendations on how everyone can improve their health through regular physical activity. More broadly, guidelines are essential tools for conducting monitoring and surveillance of PA and to help policymakers develop optimal policies and programmes to improve public health.

However, to have an impact, guidelines must be tailored to the country context. Therefore adoption, adaptation of global PA guidelines is deemed necessary to enable countries to scale their actions on PA. These include: the need for contextualisation of the guidelines to respond to specific populations within the countries; addressing the barriers to PA facing children, women, elderly, persons with disabilities and chronic diseases, and low-income populations' participation; lack of local data on determinants of behavioural change and inadequate infrastructure. The WHO global guidelines provide the basis for WHO Member States to tailor their existing national PA guidelines or establish PA guidelines.

In this regard, WHO is supporting the government in adopting, and contextualization of WHO's global guidelines to Bangladesh contexts and accordingly, in developing the national guidelines on physical activity and sedentary behaviour.
