Guiding critical decisions for UHC : A WHO Compendium to inform health service packages

WHO will launch a groundbreaking new tool to support countries to select key interventions needed to achieve UHC. The UHC Compendium is at the core of a set of powerful new WHO tools that support national and sub-national decision makers to develop packages of health services for UHC, and link these to the associated resources and health impact.

This event will explain the content and functionality of the Compendium through a practical demonstration. Speakers will discuss how countries can use the compendium to progress towards the 2023 global target of an additional 1 billion people covered by UHC, and to prioritize services for benefit packages.
