History of guideline development

The 1958, 1963 and 1971 WHO International Standards for Drinking-water and the first edition of the Guidelines for Drinking-water Quality, published in 1984, did not refer to DEHP. The 1993 Guidelines established a health-based guideline value of 0.008 mg/l for DEHP in drinking-water. This guideline value was brought forward to the third edition of the Guidelines, published in 2004, and the fourth edition of the Guidelines, published in 2011.
